1	2013-2014	Ms. Nguyen Phuong Ly	International Relations	Cornell University	Diplomatic Academy of Vietnam Ministry of Foreign Affairs	ASEAN's Absence of Collaboration on the South China Sea Issue: a Look from within	In order to account for factors behind ASEAN's reluctance to promote cooperative efforts and resolve the South China Sea(SCS)disputes, prevalent literature focuses on a wide divergence of interests among ASEAN members, and their lack of national power in international politics.Realist perspective, however, ignores potential high costs of ASEAN's failure to work together on the SCS issue. This project, therefore, argues that China's strategic exploitation of its bilateral relations with regional countries, and the dynamics of the Southeast Asian politics play an important role in influencing ASEAN members' attitude towards regional collaboration on tackling the disputes.
2	2014-2015	Ms. To Ngan Ha	TEFL/Applied Linguistics	Boston University	Hanoi University	The application of computer technology in English language testing: An experience from the U.S.	The project aims to deepen the researcher's understanding of the application of computer technology in English language testing in the U.S. Specifically, it will compare the most popular models of computer assisted language testing (CALT) to understand the strengths and the concerning issues in test design, implementation and evaluation of each model. The context of Vietnam's higher education is also considered so that the best model(s) can be proposed for application in Vietnam. Equally important is the answer about the future direction of research in the field with the hope that Vietnamese English teachers can have more studies to contribute to the field.
3	2015-2016	Dr. Pham Lan Dung	Law	TBA	Diplomatic Academy of Vietnam, Ministry of Foreign Affairs	Possible Solutions for the South China Sea Dispute	Overlapping claims in the SCS and recent activities of China may endanger peace and security in the region. If the features in the Paracel and Spratly islands, regardless of the question of sovereignty, are found to be submerged features, rocks or equivalent to rocks then this will significantly reduce the overlapping maritime areas in the SCS. With a positive view of ITLOS's jurisdiction in Case 21 and the recent case law on the role of islands in delimitation, this paper will examine relevant aspects of how can ASEAN states conclude a treaty to request for an advisory opinion from ITLOS on the application of Article 121 of UNCLOS and in accordance with Article 138 of the Rules of Tribunal.
